The Star's Platform

CITY

Apply the revenues of the municipal power plant to develop the industrial and social resources of Hope.
 More city pavement in 1931, and improved sanitary conditions in the alleys and business back-yards.
 Support the Chamber of Commerce.

COUNTY

A county highway program providing for the construction of a certain amount of all-weather road each year, to gradually reduce the dirt-road mileage.

Political and economic support for every scientific agricultural program which offers practical benefits to Hempstead county's greatest industry.

Encourage farmer organizations, believing that co-operative effort is as practical in the country as it is in town.

STATE

Continued progress on the state highway program.
 Fearless tax reform, and a more efficient government through the budget system of expenditures.
 Free Arkansas from the cattle tick.

Dust and Star Dust

Lexicographer 1932: Caste, for Society, forecast, for Politics; recast for Business.

Having been disarmed by the polite Japanese, the League of Nations is going to explain that anyway there wasn't a Chinaman's chance.

And now some poisonous Republican worries us Democrats with a story that the Literary Digest is going to call off the presidential straw-vote in 1932.

Representative Garner says the Democrats will organize the new Congress in two hours. And what the gentleman from Texas means is the kind of organization that will give the Republicans the right to work over-time.

Highway Maintenance

EST the controversies of politics blind us to the achievements of the engineers, we ought to report that on a business trip to Camden, Wednesday we found Engineer Stanford's maintenance crew hard at work on highway 24 between Prescott and the Ouachita county line, where his territory touches the Camden district.
 Just as gravel on this secondary state road had been bladed smooth as a floor after Tuesday's rain. Crossing the county-line at Bluff City, however, we found the Camden district's end of the road not so good.

Much of the maintenance force in that district, however, is reported engaged in maintaining costly new dumps on through-highways north and east of Camden, which are not yet fully paved.

Nothing throws our new system of highways into sharp contrast with the old, like turning off the new secondary road
 No. 24 into the old primary road No. 67 especially on the gravel section just northeast of Hope. Although only a minor road for local traffic between Prescott and Camden, No. 24 is far straighter and safer than the old route of 67, although when built a decade ago this was designed to carry through traffic on one of the important tourist routes of the world.

Of course, for the most part No. 67 is now a paved highway of boulevard proportions. But the last old link, between Emmet and Hope, stands in striking contrast with new construction, even when one has come off only a secondary road, but built to modern specifications.

Such a Brave, Brave Man!

SOME crack-pot has taken the better part of an hour to write us an anonymous letter concerning our editorial November 13th on the railroads.

"Do you," he writes, "have the nerve to investigate and publish this?"

Who is he to question anybody's nerve—who hasn't the nerve to sign his name to an hour's hard work?

Consider for a moment the institution he has addressed.
 Here is a newspaper with a big plant, on a prominent street, where everyone from the proprietor on down is known to most of the city and countryside—and some weasel comes sneaking up to speak, if you please, through the key-hole with an anonymous letter!

If you're going to talk to a newspaper, don't whisper—shout! Damn whisperers. Ninety per cent of the rottenness in this world is aided and abetted by whisperers.

All down through the history of civilization it has been the sublime duty of newspapers to let daylight into dark places, and with a sharp, loud word put to rout those who, if they have something to say but are unwilling to say it in a public place, at least have nothing in favor of the public interest.

The last place on earth even a fool would address with an anonymous letter, is a newspaper.

Our Airmail Incentive

DEVELOPMENT of the air mail system at government expense has probably done more than any other factor to promote the rise of commercial aviation lines in the United States. Yet the whole vast job has really cost the taxpayers comparatively little.

Charles L. Lawrence, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc., revealed the other day that in the last 14 years the federal government has spent a little less than $67,000,000 on its airmail system.
 This includes everything, from operation costs to the establishment and maintenance of the great lighted airways.

Considering the service that the airmail has rendered, together with the extensive spread of privately owned commercial air lines, it is easy to see that Uncle Sam got full value for his money.

Need New Shoes

TURLOCK, Cal.—Ed Schneider, proprietor of a shoe store here, tells of the clever way in which a supposed customer recently stole a pair of shoes.
 He had them tried on and asked to be allowed to walk up and down the aisle to test their fit. In his walk he leisurely left the store without paying for the shoes.

Gives Hoboes Food in Return for Work

Hoover's Home Town Solves Problem of Hobo Citizenship

By PHIL SINNOTT
 NEA Service Writer
 PALO ALTO, Cal.—President Hoover's home town is handling one of its social problems in a purely sociological way.

Instead of attempting to banish its hoboes, it is utilizing and making a place for them. This city, residence of President Hoover and seat of Stanford University, has made this disposition of the problem:

"Build a hotel for these men, make them stay in these better quarters, and earn their way—or move on!"

And the plan is working.

The idea for the plan occurred to Mrs. J. W. Glover, wife of a retired sea captain. She had seen the great influx of unemployed into California to escape the rigors of the eastern and northern winter.

In the nearby San Francisco Creek "jungle" she had seen men mending their clothes, cooking "mulligan" over bonfires, washing their clothes in big kerosene cans, and washing themselves in the river.

Instead of banishing these men, it would be better to banish the jungle, she decided. She and her husband
 "sold" the city officials of Palo Alto on the plan of converting an unused warehouse into a hostelry to help the jobless and eliminate the beggars.

The plan caught on.
 Instead of "Hotel de Gink," the place was called "Hotel de Zink," being made of corrugated iron. Canning firms donated cases of tin-neds. Orchard owners sent in tons of fruit. Other staple foods poured in.

Then came clothes, shoes, lumber and plumbing supplies. The hotel started operations without a deficit.
 Captain Glover will be in active charge of the hotel. He's putting things ship-shape in more ways than one. The guests will be divided into two watches, just like shipboard. The starboard watch and the port watch will each work three hours a day to get three meals. The grounds of a nearby park and hospital will be improved by this labor.

Already, several have left the "jungle" to help in the work. Several carpenters and other artisans are aiding in erecting an addition to the hotel to house lavatories, kitchen and delousing plant. Two shoemakers are using tools bought for the hotel to put into proper condition the footwear donated for the jobless.

The Palo Alto plan is attracting considerable attention all over California, for soon there will be the annual migration of itinerants from the chilly eastern winters to live more comfortably in California. State welfare agents are studying the plan here with a view to its adoption by other California communities desirous of aiding the jobless workers and ridding themselves of the professional hobo.

There is considerable discussion in the San Francisco Creek "jungle"

Meet After 16 Years

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—After 16 years
 two brothers met each other here outside a courtroom where one of them was a witness. The brothers are C. S. and J. F. Hacker. Sixteen years ago the family was separated when the father and mother died. Until the brothers met here, no one knew the whereabouts of the others. There are three sisters who have also been "lost" for 16 years.

Falling Into Sea

BERLIN.—Heligoland is slowly falling into the sea. Despite enormous sums of money spent on construction work designed to prevent erosion, the sea still continues steadily to wash away that rocky island in the North Sea.

Geologists believe nothing can be done to stop the island from eventually disappearing.

Hunts Ancient Tomb

LONDON.—Howard Carter, famous
 Egyptologist, is on the hunt again.
 His success a few years ago in finding and unearthing the tomb of the ancient King Tutankhamen, has spurred him on to search for the tomb of Alexander the Great, King of Macedon about 336 B. C. Carter believes he will find Alexander's tomb at Soli or Pompeiopolis, Asia Minor.

Willing To Pay

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Her husband

 ed to pay to get him to leave her ulation in which she agreed to pay her husband $15 a week with temporary alimony providing he left the house and never came back.

In Air Romance

It took an airplane smash-up to reveal the romance of Joseph W. Brooks, former All-American football star, and Almina Patterson, daughter of a New York publisher, who are seen here at Roosevelt Field, Long Island. When Brooks crashed in Miss Patterson's plane at South Bend, Ind., recently, and was slightly injured, the news of their engagement came to light.

Washington State Shifts Physical Education Staff

PULLMAN, Wash. — (P) — Three changes of instructors have been made in the physical education department of Washington State college.

W. F. Meredith, a graduate of Denison university, has succeeded H. H. House as associate professor of physical education while the latter has gone to Columbia university to do graduate work. Meredith was formerly athletic director and coach at Ashland college, Ashland, Ohio.

Harold Berridge, a W. S. C. graduate has replaced Kenneth Driskill as wrestling instructor and Ike Deeter has relieved Fred Fulmer as boxing mentor. Deeter was a boxing coach at Potlatch, Idaho.

Michigan State Gridders Drill in Heavy Uniforms

EAST LANSING, Mich. — (P) — The "track meet" style of football has caused Coach Jim Crowley to order a difference in the weight of his players' uniforms for practice and for actual games.

The Spartans have three sets of uniforms. The practice costume weighs 14 7-8 pounds, while the uniform for regulation games weighs three pounds less.

The difference in weight is enough to clip a tenth of a second off almost any man's 100-yard stride, Crowley says.

The third uniform is water-proof and is for wet days.

Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Rockne As I Knew Him

By DAN HALPIN
Manager 1930 Notre Dame Team

The greatest shock of my life was when Knute Rockne was killed. My association with him was so close during the last year, when I was manager of football, that I had an unusual opportunity to know him and to share his confidence. He was as much a father to me as he was to any of the boys on the team. I knew what he liked and what he disliked. I knew, for instance that he was a great deal of a fatalist. He used to say, "Well, we have to get licked some time. Maybe it's coming Saturday." That was the attitude that he evidenced toward the fatal airplane trip. But fatalism seems to make of its followers almost fanatical fighters and his determination to get every last ounce out of every situation and every man was one of the supreme characteristics of him that I will remember.

He hated alibis. He had no use for a player who in defeat consoled himself with the thought of winning another day. To him, defeat was failure in reaching the desired objective. And still, I never met a man who had as much respect for opponents or for others engaged in the same thing as he had.

Most people, I am sure, think of Knute Rockne only as a coach of football. He was one of the best rounded individuals I ever knew. He had remarkable abilities and capacity. He was proficient as an instructor in chemistry. He was a most entertaining and eagerly sought after-dinner speaker. He would have made a great actor. He used his inimitable gift at characterization and impersonation in jazzing up the team and putting over a point that he wanted stressed. He was champion of the college in squash rackets. He was a splendid tennis player. To him, football was the man's game. It required men mentally alert and physically fit. After this came tennis. He thought of golf not as a sport, but a recreation. He was marvelously fond of children, and unfortunately, unduly trustful of anyone offering him an investment. His confidence in human nature was something sublime, but unfortunately it was frequently misplaced. His implicit confidence in his own men and his own system, his dynamic, forceful way of talking, his picturesque expressions, and the suddenness with which he would switch from biting sarcasm to humorous cajolery to get over his point, were characteristics that none of us who knew him well will ever forget.

No matter what each of us carried away from college, I am certain that Knute Rockne typifies to us the Spirit of Notre Dame. Every lover of football and every admirer of great men will be glad with me that Rockne has this fitting memorial "The Spirit of Notre Dame" which is playing at the Saenger Theatre now.

One and One
In the table of averages covering the recent "little world series" between Rochester, champion of the International League, and St. Paul of the American Association, appeared at the top the name of George Siler. He batted .340.

In one game George was once out. He singled. That may have been his last time at bat, for the series was released.

There was something magnificent about that last blow by old George, as it was a last gasp of defiance to unfriendly fate. Here was a used-up ball player at the plate, a badly used-up player at that. His legs were shaky and his eyes were a bit blurry, but when the pitcher hurled that white streak toward the plate, George for an instant redoubled his lost greatness.

Turns Back Year
ONCE again he was a fine ball player, a ball player who had been able to crack American League pitching for 429 nine years before.

So when that white ball came hurtling down the alley, George just drew back and patted it, whistling right out of there.

And for this he was rewarded with $500, which was a player's share for participating in the little world series.

Three Other Guys
MEANWHILE the world series, the big world series, was staged, and in the cast of characters were three people named respectively Reutter, High and Flowers. Reutter was brought in from Cincinnati in a trade for Douthett, going from a last place club to share in the world series spoils. High was brought back from the Cardinal farm at Rochester just in time to get his cut of the big money. Jake Flowers, after some indifferent years with Brooklyn, fell into world series fortune when the Cardinals felt the need of an extra infielder.

Here were three ball players who at their best hardly could be mentioned in the same breath with Siler at his worst. They each took down approximately $4500 for their services on the bench and in the field in seven games.

Yet Siler, ranking with the "Mother taught us all to drive," says Lieutenant Paul Caraway, who looks a lot like his father. "But now" he smiles "she hangs on tight in the back seat while we drive."

"Yes," puts in 15-year-old Bobbie, "and she's a good cook, too—and she can play golf."

"Golf?"

"Well, I made a hole in one, once," smiles the mother. "My score for nine holes, I guess, is about 120."

Likes Home, Flowers

During Congress sessions, Mrs. Caraway lived with her husband in Washington, but the rest of the time they spent here. They have a pretty old southern home with flowers all around it. She likes to tend those flowers.

She has never made a political speech in her life or taken much part in politics, except to assist at her husband's campaign headquarters. But if a neighbor is sick, she likes to go over with some hot biscuits and broth and help things along.

But behind this reticent, retiring little woman whom the public never saw there is something deeper—far deeper. She was her husband's counselor. Each evening at home they talked over measures that the senator was considering, helped him prepare his speeches for the next day. Perhaps she knew as much about his job as he did—but he was the senator, not she. She preferred to remain

Saenger Presents Added Attraction

Prince Zodar, Mentalist, Opens Engagement for Remainder of Week

Prince Zodar "The Mentalist" opens a three day engagement at the Saenger theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Judging from the enthusiasm shown at the first appearance Thursday of Prince Zodar, he is justly worthy of the title of The Man who sees all, knows all and answers all questions.

At each appearance Zodar answers many questions ranging from world economics to when will I be married. The answers are given in rapid succession with tact and wisdom. Zodar seems to have his audience spellbound with amazement from the very moment that the curtain rises, his demonstrations being executed without any assistance which in itself removes any doubt that he is today in a class by himself as one of America's greatest mentalists.

Zodar carries the distinction of having showed seven consecutive weeks in one Broadway theatre. Longest run for an act of its nature in any one Theatre.

An author as well as an actor, Zodar spent many years in vaudeville, then retired to begin a career as a writer. Has written three books on the Philosophy of life and Advance Psychology, but the job of being an author was not sufficient to stop the urge of the stage. The glare of lights and the applause of a gay audience. Today Zodar says the happiest hour of his life is when I please my audience and they appreciate my work, my heart is filled with delight.

Clark County Confers on County Agent Plans

ARKADELPHIA—J. L. Wright, district agent, and Miss Ella Posey, district home demonstration agent of the extension service, were here Tuesday conferring with the Clark county agents and Arkadelphia business leaders relative to the failure of the quorum court to appropriate for continuance of the service in this county. It was stated that it was the desire of the state organization to continue the work if any possible arrangements could be made. Extension work has been built up into a strong organization and many regret that it is not being continued.

The results of the conference were not given out but it was stated by Miss Posey that they still had hopes of keeping the service in Clark county. Agents in this county are Roberts N. Bond and Miss Sybil Bates.

Physicians Warned of State Control

Greater Interest in Public Welfare Needed, Medical Chief Says

NEW ORLEANS—(P)—A more active interest by physicians in public health and preventive medicine to counteract any movement toward establishment of "state medicine" was asked of the Southern Medical Association Wednesday night in an address by its president, Dr. Felix J. Underwood of Jackson, Miss.

He defined "state medicine" as "a system whereby all physicians are educated under state control and are salaried by the state, supported through taxation, receiving no direct compensation from their patients."

"Independence in medical practice is essential to the happiness and prosperity of doctors," he said. "Legitimate full time public health service is the best insurance we have against state medicine." He lauded physicians of the South for their activity in behalf of public health, and urged its continuance, declaring:

"There is no part of the country where more vigorous rural health activity can be seen in operation, where money is being spent more wisely and where better results are obtained than in the South."

He asserted that leadership in American public health had shifted to the South largely as a result of development of local rural health units.

Delegates from throughout the South were welcomed by Dr. S. C. Barrow, Shreveport, president of the State Medical Association, and Dr. E. L. Irwin, New Orleans, president of the Orleans unit.

Widow Confesses Poisoning Husband

50-Year-Old Widow Signs Statement Confessing Illinois Tragedy

PEKIN, Ill.—(P)—State's Attorney Louis Dunkelberg announced Wednesday night that Mrs. Alice Magan, 55-year-old widow of DeLavan, Ill., had signed a statement admitting she killed her husband, John, a year ago and her daughter, Mildred, 12, last August, with poison.

Mrs. Mason charged, Dunkelberg said, that the poison was supplied her by B. M. Barringer, who signed the girl's death certificate. The state's attorney said, however, that he doubted the physician participated in the alleged plot.

Realtors to Back Home Loan Banks

Will Seek Favorable Action by Congress on Hoover Proposal

WASHINGTON—(P)—Fashioning of a bipartisan phalanx to insure congressional approval of President Hoover's plan for creating 12 home loan discount banks was begun Wednesday by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The Executive Committee, meeting here, toured political camps seeking to organize support and early legislative action upon the proposal for accelerating home building and taking the strain off institutions dealing in mortgage loans.

At the same time Harry S. Kissell of Springfield, O., president of the association, said added power would be sought by having each of the 562 member boards exert pressure upon their congressmen.

The committee conferred with Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, and Walter H. Newton, secretary to President Hoover. Thursday is to call on J. M. Thayer, executive chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Emphasizing the bipartisan support they were seeking, Kissell said former Governor Cox of Ohio, a former Democratic presidential nominee, had told him over the phone that he considered the plan the most constructive move the president had yet made to improve business conditions.

Pledge Support to Wife of Caraway

Members of State Central Committee Favor Her Nomination

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(P)—The Arkansas Democrat after a telegraphic poll of the members of the State Democratic Central Committee Thursday named seventeen members as supporters of Mrs. Hattie Caraway for nomination to succeed her late husband for his unexpired term and says that probably 30 of the 31 members will vote at the outset to nominate her.

Governor Parnell has announced that he had urged his friends on the committee to vote for Mrs. Caraway, whom he appointed to serve until a special election to fill the vacancy on January 12th.
